THE WESTERN CHRISTMAS Christmas, the sacred day, has evidently been built for all mankind. The Star of Bethleham, the Sacred Manger and the Son of the Lord will be praised in a thousand languages and scores of different worship, but in the West it has grown to a day of pleasure giving and it is safe to say that not a hungry mouth will be without food in this State and men of all nations vie with each other to do good to their neighbor, or the neighbors youngster. Carson is one of the typical towns of the glorious West the element of purchase and gife was abroad yesterday. The sight of it all was the children of the Indian School. They purchased to the capacity of their limited purses, the purchases are for gifts to their neighbors of blood. The spirit of gift has been instaled into the red man by his white brother, and whether the birth of the Lord has anything to do with the generous custom is doubtful. The simplist gift that money could buy was tucked away with the intent of making a gift to another. It was Christmas, not of the prayer book variety but from the liberal heart, that means more than mere religion. The custom has started and will grow, whatever the meaning.
